

APTIS SPEAKING PART 4 (Phần 2)

17.

Tell me about a time you saved up something to buy something for yourself.

I'd like to share about a time I saved money to buy something I really wanted. Last month, I wanted to buy a new cellphone because my old one was slow and cracked. I found a phone I liked online, but I didn't have enough money. So, I saved up by making coffee at home, cooking instead of eating out, and taking the bus. After a few weeks, I finally had enough money to buy it. When it arrived, I was really happy because it was fast, looked nice, and the camera was great.

How did you feel?

Moving on to the second question, I felt very happy and excited when the phone arrived. I worked hard to save money, so it felt great to finally get what I wanted.

People spend too much money on trivial items. What do you think?

As for the final question, I believe that people spend too much money on trivial items for a few reasons. First, they want to impress others with their wealth or status. Second, they are influenced by advertising and social media, which make them want things they don't really need. Third, they don't have a clear financial plan to help control their spending. That's why many people end up wasting money on things that aren't truly important.

18.

Tell me about a time you bought something expensive.

I'd like to share about a time when I bought something quite expensive. Last month, I wanted to buy a new cellphone because my old one was slow and cracked. I found a phone I liked online, but I didn't have enough money. So, I saved up by making coffee at home, cooking instead of eating out, and taking the bus. After a few weeks, I finally had enough money to buy it. When it arrived, I was really happy because it was fast, looked nice, and the camera was great.

What are the items you can buy at a high price?

Moving on to the next question, there are many items that I can buy at a high price. Some examples are: jewelry, art, cars, houses, and designer clothes. These items are expensive because they are rare, beautiful, or have high quality. People who buy them want to show their wealth, taste, or style.

In your country, do people often buy high-priced items?
Why?

As for the final question, many people in my country buy expensive things for different reasons. First, they want to show that they have a good job or a lot of money, so others will respect them. Second, they believe expensive products have better quality and last longer. Third, buying something expensive can make people feel happy, proud, and more confident. That's why many choose to spend more on things they really like.

19.

Tell me about a time when somebody told you to stop doing something.

I'd like to share a time when someone told me to stop doing something. Last month, I was playing music loudly while studying, and my roommate told me to stop because it was disturbing them. I didn't realize it was bothering them at first, but then I understood. I felt a bit surprised at first, but I quickly turned the music down and apologized. After that, I made sure to keep the volume low while studying so it wouldn't bother anyone.

How did you feel about it?

Now, moving on to the next question. At first, I felt a little surprised and embarrassed. But then I felt sorry for making my roommate uncomfortable. I was happy they told me in a polite way, so we could solve the problem quickly.

Do you think there are too many rules in modern life?

As for the final question, I think modern life has a lot of rules. We have rules at school, work, and in public places. Even on social media, there are rules about what we can or cannot say. Some rules are helpful because they keep us safe and organized. But sometimes, there are too many rules, and they make people feel stressed or not free. I think it's important to have rules, but not too many. Balance is the key.

20.

Tell me about a time you had to make a choice.

I'd like to share a time when I had to make an important choice. Last week, I had to choose between going to a party or staying home to study for an important test. I really wanted to have fun with my friends, but I knew the test would affect my final grade. After thinking carefully, I decided to study first and join the party later. It was not an easy choice, but I felt proud because I did well on the test and still got to enjoy the party. Sometimes, we have to balance fun and responsibility.

What do you feel when you have to make a difficult decision?

Moving on to the next question, when I have to make a difficult decision, I feel nervous and worried. I don't want to choose the wrong thing. But after thinking carefully, I usually feel more sure and confident.

Can you give some general advice to people who have to make a choice?

As for the final question, I believe that making a choice can be hard, but here are some simple tips. First, think about what is most important to you and what you really want. Second, look at the good and bad sides of each option and how they might affect your future. Third, talk to someone you trust for advice. Don't rush — take your time and trust yourself. If you think clearly, you'll feel better about your decision.

21.

Tell me about a time when you started a new course or learned something new.

I'd like to talk about a time when I started learning something new. Last month, I joined an online English course to improve my skills and learn more vocabulary. The course was fun and interesting. I met new friends from different countries and we practiced speaking together. The teacher gave useful tips and helped us with grammar and pronunciation. I felt more confident after the course.

What makes a course enjoyable?

Moving on to the next question, I think a good course needs three things. First, the teacher should make lessons fun and easy to follow. Second, the topics should be useful and interesting. Third, students should join in activities and talk with others. These things make learning more fun and effective.

Why do people choose to do new courses?

As for the final question, I believe that people join new courses for many reasons. First, they want to learn new skills or get better at something. Second, they may want to explore a new hobby or topic. Third, they want to advance their careers or get a better job. Finally, they want to challenge themselves or grow personally. Whatever the reason, doing new courses can be an enjoyable experience.

22.

Tell me about a time you went on a long journey/ you traveled to somewhere new.

I'd like to talk about a time when I went on a long journey. Last year, I went on a trip to Vũng Tàu with three close friends. We left early in the morning and drove for about three hours. The weather was sunny and nice. On the way, we talked, listened to music, and laughed a lot, so the trip felt short. We stopped at a small café to rest and take some photos. When we arrived, we went to the beach, played in the water, and ate delicious seafood. It was a fun trip with many good memories.

How did you feel about it?

Moving on to the next question, I felt happy and relaxed on the trip. I had a lot of fun with my friends. I really enjoyed the nice views, tasty food, and quiet beach. It was a good way to take a break from studying.

What is the importance of understanding the customs where you travel?

As for the final question, I believe that understanding the customs where you travel is important. First, it helps you show respect to local people. They feel happy when you understand their way of life. Second, it helps you avoid problems or mistakes, like saying or doing the wrong thing. Third, it makes your trip more fun. You can join local festivals, try new food, and talk to people more easily. In short, knowing customs helps you enjoy your trip and learn new things.

23.

What are different ways you use Internet?

To be honest, I often use the internet when I want to relax. I like watching movies, listening to music, and enjoying game shows online. I also use the internet for studying. I'm a final-year student, so I need to look for books and research articles. Some of them are not in the library but can be found online. Lastly, I use the internet to stay in touch with my family and friends through apps like Facebook and Zalo. Thanks to the internet, I can talk and even see them every day.

How do you feel when you use the Internet?

Now, moving on to the second question, I would say that most of the time, I feel relaxed and happy, especially when I watch funny videos or chat with my friends. However, if I spend too much time online, I sometimes feel tired or distracted.

Some people say that the Internet has a bad impact on our lives. What do you think?

As for the final question, I believe that the Internet has both good and bad effects. It helps us stay connected, learn new things, and enjoy free time with music or videos. It's also useful for studying and working. However, using it too much can waste time and affect our health. Some people become addicted or see bad content online. So, we should use the Internet in a smart and balanced way to enjoy its benefits and avoid problems.

24.

Tell me about a time you read a good book.

I really love reading books, especially ones that teach me something new. A time I read a good book was when I read How to Be Rich by Napoleon Hill last week. It's a famous book that shares the secrets of successful people and how they built their wealth. It inspired me to set goals, work hard, and stay positive. I learned a lot from it, and I think it's great for anyone who wants to improve their life.

How do you feel when you read books for pleasure?

Now, moving on to the second question. When I read for pleasure, I feel relaxed and happy. Reading helps me forget about stress and enjoy the present moment. I also feel curious and excited because I often discover new ideas or learn something interesting. It's a great way to relax after a long, busy day.

Some people love watching films more than reading books. What do you think?

As for the final question, I believe that many people prefer watching films over reading books for a few reasons. First, films are more visually exciting — they have sound, color, and movement, which make the story easier to follow. Second, movies clearly show emotions through the actors' faces and voices. Also, watching a film is more convenient than reading, especially when people are tired. That's why I think films are a fun and easy way to enjoy stories and learn something new.

26.

Tell me about a time you did or saw someone do an extreme sport.

I'd like to share a time I did an extreme sport. I love extreme sports, so I have many stories to share. The last time I did one was two weeks ago, when I went skydiving with my friends. We jumped out of a plane at 10,000 feet and felt so many emotions during the free fall. After about a minute, we opened our parachutes and enjoyed the amazing view below. It was peaceful and beautiful. I felt like I was flying. It was an unforgettable experience, and I really want to do it again.

How did you feel?

Now, moving on to the second question. I felt really great. At first, I was a little scared, but then I felt excited and free. It was like flying in the sky. I forgot all my worries and just enjoyed the moment. It was one of the best feelings I've ever had.

Only adults should be allowed to do extreme sports?

As for the final question, I don't think only adults should do extreme sports. Young people can enjoy them too, as long as they are trained and guided by professionals. These sports can help people become more brave and confident. Of course, safety is very important. If people follow the rules and wear the right equipment, they can do it safely at any age.

Tell me about a time you saw a work of art.

I'd like to talk about a time when I saw a beautiful work of art. Last week, I visited a museum and saw a famous painting called Starry Night by Vincent van Gogh /'vin.sənt væn goʊ/. It shows a quiet village at night, with big stars and a moon shining in a swirling sky. There's also a tall tree in the front, and the whole picture feels like a dream. The colors were strong and the sky looked like it was moving. I stood there for a while because it was so beautiful and full of feeling.

How did you feel about it?

Moving on to the next question, I felt calm and amazed. The painting made me think deeply, but also feel peaceful inside. It was really beautiful.

Can we teach other people creativity?

As for the final question, I think that creativity can be taught. First, people can learn by practicing and watching how others solve problems. They can join art classes or try new things. Second, we can teach methods like brainstorming or thinking outside the box to help them get new ideas. Finally, we can inspire creativity by sharing our own ideas, giving support, and allowing others to take risks without fear of being wrong. With the right support, anyone can become more creative.

Tell me about the last time you went to the amusement park.

I'd like to talk about the last time I went to the amusement park. It was two months ago on a sunny day, and I went with my best friend. We had so much fun riding the roller coaster, the Ferris wheel, and the bumper cars. We also ate cotton candy, popcorn, and ice cream. We laughed a lot and took many pictures. It was one of the best days of my life. I love amusement parks because they make me feel happy and excited.

How did you feel?

Moving on to the next question, very happy and excited during the trip. I enjoyed the rides, the snacks, and the time with my friend. It was truly a great day.

Do people in your country often visit amusement parks?

As for the final question, I think people often go to amusement parks, especially on holidays or weekends for some reasons. First, these parks offer fun activities for all ages, like rides, games, and shows, so they attract both families and groups of friends. Second, many people choose to celebrate birthdays or special events there. Third, it's a fun way to relax and enjoy time together after a busy week.

Why are some people scared of playing adventure games?

As for the final question, I think some people are scared of adventure games because they don't like surprises. They may feel anxious or stressed when they face something unknown. Also, adventure games can be challenging and require quick thinking or physical strength. Some people just prefer relaxing games. That's totally okay — everyone has their own taste.

Tell about a time you were with someone older or younger than you.

I'd like to talk about a time I was with someone older than me. Last year, I spent a weekend with my grandmother at her house in the countryside. We cooked together, walked around her garden, and talked a lot. She told me stories about her life when she was young, and I found them really interesting. Even though we are from different generations, we had a great time together.

What do you feel to be with that person?

Now, moving on to the second question, I felt warm and happy. My grandmother is very kind and caring. I also felt lucky to spend time with her and learn from her experiences. She gave me good advice and made me feel relaxed, like I could tell her anything.

How do people from different generations learn from each other?

And finally, I think young people can learn about the past, life skills, and values from older people. On the other hand, older people can learn about technology, new trends, or modern ways of thinking from the younger generation. Sharing time and listening to each other is the best way to learn and understand more.

Describe a time when you visited someone.

I'd like to talk about a time when I visited someone. Last summer, I visited my best friend who had just moved to a new house in the countryside. The area was quiet and green, with a nice garden and a river nearby. We spent the whole day cooking, talking, and riding bicycles around the village. It was a fun and relaxing day, and I really enjoyed it.

What do you think about having unexpected visitors?

Now, moving on to the second question, to be honest, I think it depends on the situation. If I'm free and the house is clean, I feel happy to welcome them. It's a nice surprise. But if I'm busy or tired, it can be a little stressful. So I think it's better if people send a quick message before coming, even if they are close friends or family.

Some people like to live in small communities while others like to live in big cities. What is your opinions?

And finally, in my opinion, living in a small community is better for me. It's quieter, safer, and people are more friendly. You can feel like part of a family. Big cities have more jobs and modern services, but they are crowded and noisy. So I prefer the peaceful life in a small place.

Tell about a time you spent surrounded by nature.

I'd like to talk about a time I spent surrounded by nature. Last summer, I went camping with my friends in a national park. We stayed in a small tent near a lake, surrounded by trees, flowers and birds. In the morning, we walked in the forest, listened to birds singing, and watched the sunrise. At night, we made a fire and looked at the stars. It was very quiet and peaceful, and I felt really close to nature.

How do you feel afterwards?

Moving on to the second question, after that trip, I felt relaxed and happy. Being in nature helped me forget all the stress from studying and daily life. I also felt healthier because we walked a lot and breathed fresh air. I think spending time in nature is very good for both body and mind.

How can people be encouraged to protect and preserve nature?

And finally, I think education is the most important. People need to learn why nature is important and how to take care of it. Schools should teach students about the environment. Also, governments can make laws to protect natural areas. And finally, we can all do small things, like not littering, saving water, or planting trees.

Tell me a sports game you went to watched or watched on TV?

I'd like to talk about a football match I watched on TV last year. I watched a football match on TV between Vietnam and Thailand. I watched it with my family at home. It was an exciting game, and we were all cheering for Vietnam. The players ran fast, passed the ball well, and worked as a team. The match ended in a 2-2 draw, but it was still fun to watch. I felt proud of my country. Watching the game with my family made the night special. I really enjoyed it.

How did you feel about watching it?

Moving on to the next question, I was so happy and felt proud. Even though I wasn't there, watching it on TV was still thrilling, and I really enjoyed the experience.

Do sporting events always bring out the best in people?

As for the final question, I think that sporting events often bring out the best in people. First, they help create a strong community spirit. People come together to cheer for their team and share the fun. Second, sports teach teamwork, respect, and fair play. Third, watching or playing sports helps people feel happy and forget stress. Most people enjoy sports in a positive way and feel more connected with others.

Tell me about a time when you visited an old building.

I visited an old building last year when I went to Ho Chi Minh City in Vietnam. It was the Duc Ba church. The building is over 100 years old and it has a beautiful style. I was amazed by the red bricks, the stained glass windows and the two tall towers. The church was very crowded with tourists and locals, but I still felt a sense of peace and history inside. I learned that the church is a symbol (biểu tượng) of the city and a cultural heritage /'herətɪdʒ/ (dị sản văn hóa) of Vietnam.

How did you feel about it?

I felt amazed when I visited the Duc Ba Church. It was so old and beautiful. I liked the architecture and the stained glass windows. I learned a lot about the history and culture of Vietnam.

Why do you think it is important to look after old building?

I think it is important to look after old buildings for three reasons. First, old buildings are part of our history and culture. They tell us stories about the past and help us understand where we came from. Second, old buildings are beautiful and special. They make our cities and towns more interesting and attractive. Third, old buildings can also be useful for different purposes, such as museums, hotels, or offices. Therefore, I believe we should preserve and protect old buildings as much as we can.

Tell me about a time when you got lost.

The last time I got lost was last year. When I had a business trip to Ho Chi Minh City, I wanted to visit Duc Ba Church. It was a beautiful church in Ho Chi Minh City, Vietnam. I wanted to explore the surrounding area, so I walked around without a map. I realized that I didn't know where I was or how to get back to the church. The streets were crowded and noisy, and I couldn't find anyone who spoke English. I felt scared and confused. Luckily, I had my phone with me and I was able to call a taxi. The driver took me back to the church safely.

How did you feel about it?

I was very scared and confused (sợ và bối rối). I didn't know where to go or who to ask for help. I felt alone and helpless (cô đơn và bất lực). It was a lesson for me to be more careful when traveling in unfamiliar places.

What do people usually do when they get lost?

When people get lost, they usually try to find their way back by using their phone. They can use a map app or a GPS to see where they are and where they need to go. Sometimes, they can also call someone who knows the place better and ask for directions. If they don't have a phone, they might ask other people around them for help. They can also check for signs or landmarks that can guide them to their destination.
